

Daniela Căprioară, university professor, has a degree in Mathematics and Psychology. She graduated from the Doctoral School of University of Bucharest, in the field of Educational Sciences, under the supervision of Professor Ioan Neacșu. Her academic experience includes: mathematics didactics, educational research, computer-assisted training and digital skills training, educational management, educational project management, educational evaluation, educational partnership, pedagogical practice.

Her areas of scientific interest include: mathematics education and mathematics curriculum, psychology of mathematics learning, assessment of learning outcomes, financial education, STEM education, entrepreneurial education, digital education, innovation in education, project-based learning, transversal skills training, initial and continuous teacher training.